

My research is about to be published, how do I get help promoting it?

Your research has been accepted for publication, or is soon to be published, or has just been published. Congratulations! The Research Profile and Impact unit of the Office of the Vice-President Research can help you communicate the story of your results to the wider public and work with you to help amplify your reach.

Login to continue reading

Related Articles

- What is the Research Profile and Impact unit?
- I have received a call from a journalist about my research, how do I get help in responding?
- How can I write about my research in The Conversation Canada?
- What is the Young Innovators series?
- How can I get my research featured in the Young Innovators series?
- Who can write for The Conversation Canada?
- What is The Conversation Canada?
- What is a Continuous Research Fund \(CRF\)?
- Who approves my research application and awarded research funding?
- Who Can I Contact For Human Ethics Information?

Provide feedback